Holy freakin' frog! Where did we find a dime the size of a softball?

I thought it was a tick, good thing I didn't squish it!

Someone tell that guy we travel in the left lane here, and he's moving too slow to pass!

Idiot!
I am in MY left lane, going in the opposite direction from you. I'm just moving too slow for you to notice.

Two eggs under easy

On Friday, March 18th, Coral Bay Blues Week presented Jimi "Prime Time" Smith at Shipwreck, where he opened for Coral Bay Blues Boy "Shipwrecker" Dennis.

Jimi's mother, Johnnie Mae Dunson Smith, wrote songs for and worked with Jimmy Reed and Koko Taylor. Jimmy Reed was the first man to hold Jimi as a newborn infant. And that pedigree rubbed off on Jimi because he and his band delivered the blues goods house-rockin' style.

After Jimi warmed up the crowd with his drummer and bass player (who you might recognize from his visit here with Max Cabello several moons ago), out came the Executive Chef of the Blues, "Shipwrecker" Dennis.

Cow Wreck Cowrection

In honor of the recent 5.1 Earthquake that cracked just 16 miles north of Anegada and rattled us out of bed here in Coral Bay just after midnight on April 13th, we thought we'd present another flash of news from our escape island. If you do ever vacation in Anegada, rest assured that all your sporting needs will be well taken care of.

Picture of the Week:
“Shipwrecker” Dennis was lucky enough to have blues legend Muddy Water sit in on drums as he tore down the roof at Shipwreck. (Shut up and just go with it, we know Muddy is busy harmonizing with Pinetop Perkins right now, but Coral Bay was Blues Heaven by this point in the week, and we still had two full nights of concerts to attend.)
